

HOW P4P BIKES HELP

In developing countries, a bicycle from P4P is so much more than a means of transportation – it's a life changer. Without it, families are left walking for hours to reach essential destinations like work, school, and markets. But with a P4P bike, these journeys are substantially shorter, offering newfound freedom and accessibility to those in need.

DONATE

It costs about $52 to ship one bike overseas. Our overseas partners pay for international shipping, but to pay for our operations in the U.S. we rely on a suggested donation of $20 dollars per item at our collection sites and from individual donors like you. Your generosity is appreciated!

Rescuing bicycles destined for overburdened U.S. landfills since 1991.

SEWING PEACE

In the developing world, a sewing machine signifies opportunity. With one, individuals can achieve financial independence. Sewing machines empower individuals to start their own businesses, create clothing for their families, and contribute to their local economies.

Sewing Peace, a sister project to P4P, donates used sewing machines to our international programs. These sewing machines are donated in working condition and come with a suggested donation of $20.

COLLECTIONS

The best way to donate bicycles or sewing machines is to visit one of our collection drives.

By partnering with clubs, schools, religious groups and recycling organizations, in New Jersey and surrounding states, we are able to run collections in the spring and fall.
